

On March 27th will you vote for human innovation or for stagnation?

Title: Human Achievement Happy Hour DC

Date: Saturday, March 27, 2010

Time: 7:30 pm - 10:00 pm

Location: RiRa Irish Pub and Restaurant

Street: 2915 Wilson Boulevard

City/Town: Arlington, VA

RSVP to: mminton@cei.org

or on the facebook event page:

<http://www.facebook.com/event.php>

?eid=362208123913

Hosted by The Competitive Enterprise Institute

On March 27th will you vote for human innovation or for stagnation?

Details:

Once a year environmentalists turn off their lights for one hour, called Earth Hour, as a symbolic "vote" to take action against climate change. They want our leaders to "do something" about energy consumption and pollution - meaning they want laws and sanctions to prevent individuals from freely using earth's resources. They seek to limit individuals' ability to create the future wave of technologies and continue producing the current products that benefit our everyday lives. You can turn off your lights and join them. Or you can join the people around the world who plan to leave their lights on, affirming their appreciation for human achievements such as electricity, plumbing, restaurants, medicine, beer, heating, transportation, computers, solar power, and the numerous other products and achievements of the human mind. On Saturday March 27th 7:30 pm -10 pm join us at RiRa Irish Pub and Restaurant in Arlington, VA for drinks, discussion, and general appreciation of the innovations that have made life on earth for humans longer, healthier, and happier. This year cast your vote against environmental alarmism and vote for Human Achievement.

Find out more about Human Achievement Hour by visiting us on the web at www.CEI.org or www.OpenMarket.org

