NATIONAL REVIEW,

Appellant.

v.

MICHAEL E. MANN,

Appellee.

BEFORE: Thompson, Associate Judge and Pryor and Nebeker, Senior Judges.

ORDER

On consideration of this court's March 26, 2014, order directing appellants to show cause why their respective appeals should not be dismissed as having been taken from a non-appealable order that does not meet the requirements of the collateral order doctrine; appellee's motion to dismiss or, in the alternative, motion to expedite; appellants' joint response to the show cause order wherein they also oppose the motion to dismiss and consent to expedited review; appellee's response; the American Civil Liberties Union of the Nation's Capital ("the ACLU") lodged amicus curiae response; the Reporters Committee for Freedom of the Press (and eighteen other media organizations) (collectively "Reporters") and the District of Columbia motions for leave to file the lodged amicus curiae responses; the motion to withdraw as counsel for Competitive Enterprise on behalf of Bruce D. Brown, Esquire; and the notices of appeal; and it appearing that the issue of appealability is a matter of first impression, it is

Nos. 14-CV-101 & 14-CV-126

ORDERED, sua sponte, that the Clerk shall file the ACLU's lodged amicus curiae response as its response. It is FURTHER ORDERED that the Reporters and the District of Columbia's motions to file the lodged amicus curiae responses are granted and the Clerk shall file the amicus curiae responses. It is FURTHER ORDERED that Bruce D. Brown's motion to withdraw his appearance as counsel for Competitive Enterprise is granted. It is

FURTHER ORDERED that appellee's motion to dismiss is denied. It is FURTHER ORDERED that appellee's alternative request to expedite the appeals is hereby granted and these appeals are hereby expedited. It is

FURTHER ORDERED that the order to show cause is hereby discharged. It is FURTHER ORDERED that the parties shall address in their brief the jurisdictional issue presented in this appeal.
